MAIL ORDER EVILS

Advertising In Local Papers the Best Way to Combat it.

Much has been written about the subtle influence of the big four pound catalogues sent broadcast over the land by the houses located in the big cities and which, strange to say, refuse to sell goods to the residents of the big cities in which they are located. There is no mysterious element in these bulky paper books. From cover to cover they are filled with pictures and with prices and descriptions of goods. The power of printer's ink is the only magnet, and this magnet can be used by merchants everywhere. The publishers of these great catalogues do business running well up toward the fifty millions yearly. All their success has been in the ink they use and the way they use it. Because these concerns receive patronage that should go to the home merchant it is the home merchant's fault. He neglects to do what the houses which publish the big catalogues do. He may not have the money to get out such a great list, neither the means of carrying great stocks of goods. Yet he possesses all the means necessary to gain the trade that goes to these great concerns. He can buy goods just as low, has less expense, and while the big catalogue goes to a customer only once in a year or two, through the medium of the local newspapers the merchant can go to all the people of the community once a week and at the lowest expense.

As to the matter of prices, the big catalogue is an educator. It tells the people of values. These values are associated with classes of goods. The merchant in the home town can turn this information to own account. In the catalogues are pictures. The merchant can show the goods and can explain the difference between grades. It is evident that if trade is to be held at home it must be upon a business basis. Sentiment cuts a mighty small figure in matters where dollars and cents are concerned. The average farmer would rather buy goods from the home store than from some distant place, if he is only sure that he is getting a square deal. It is up to the merchants to let him know that he is getting this square deal.

The towns in the western agricultural sections which a few years ago were getting only half the trade that was to be had in the district. Merchants became convinced that they were weak somewhere. They found that they were not advertising rightly and commenced a campaign which has resulted in driving the catalogue houses out of business as far as these towns are concerned. The newspapers of these places tell of the enterprise of the merchants. The merchants themselves will tell you that they do not fear the mail order houses, as they have educated the people to trade at home. The people who were mail order house patrons will tell you that they know that they can do better by buying at home, that they are convinced that their interests are best protected by the home merchant and that since they have thrown off the mail order habit they are saving more money. The order house is a great bugaboo. It is not near the evil that many suppose it is. It is harmful only in accordance with the lack of enterprise on the part of the home merchants. Where the merchants are awake, are up-to-date and advertise rightly, there is no complaint as to the mail order system.

The live merchant can hold his own. Business is based upon such principles as give the competent merchant a fair show in the competition for trade. No one person has a monopoly of the right to advertise. The way is as open to the small as it is to the big one. The principles involved apply to the large business. The only magic used by the catalogue houses is that they found in advertising and in prices.—D. M. Carr in Dwight (Ill.) Herald.

Colored People in Gallia Revolt.

Gallipolis, O., Feb. 19, 1908.—Over three hundred colored people met at the Paint Creek Baptist church, of this city, and after bitter and intensely hostile speeches against Taft and Roosevelt's policy informal resolutions announced that they would under no circumstances support a county ticket nominated by a convention in which Taft and Roosevelt were endorsed. There were representative present from five townships and there are seven hundred colored voters in the county. Their defection would be a serious matter. They warn all colored men against supporting any candidate for county office put in nomination by friends of Taft. The speakers at the meeting were men of prominence and influence.—Pomeroy Independent.

NOW IS BEST TIME TO TAKE

Directions To Prepare Simple, Home Mixture

A well-known authority on Rheumatism gives the readers of a large New York daily paper the following valuable, yet simple and harmless prescription, which any one can easily prepare at home:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Mix by shaking well in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost, and, being of vegetable extraction, are harmless to take.

This pleasant mixture, if taken regularly for a few days, is said to overcome almost any case of Rheumatism. The pain and swelling, if any, diminishes with each dose, until permanent results are obtained, and without injuring the stomach. While there are many so-called Rheumatism remedies, patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results, and the above will, no doubt, be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of this neighborhood elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately, or the druggists here will mix the prescription for our readers if asked to.
